ORANGUTAN FOUNDATION INTERNATIONAL

In Malay orang means "person" and utan is derived from hutan, which means "forest." Thus, orangutan literally means "person of the forest."

An orangutan in prime living conditions can live for up to 60 years.

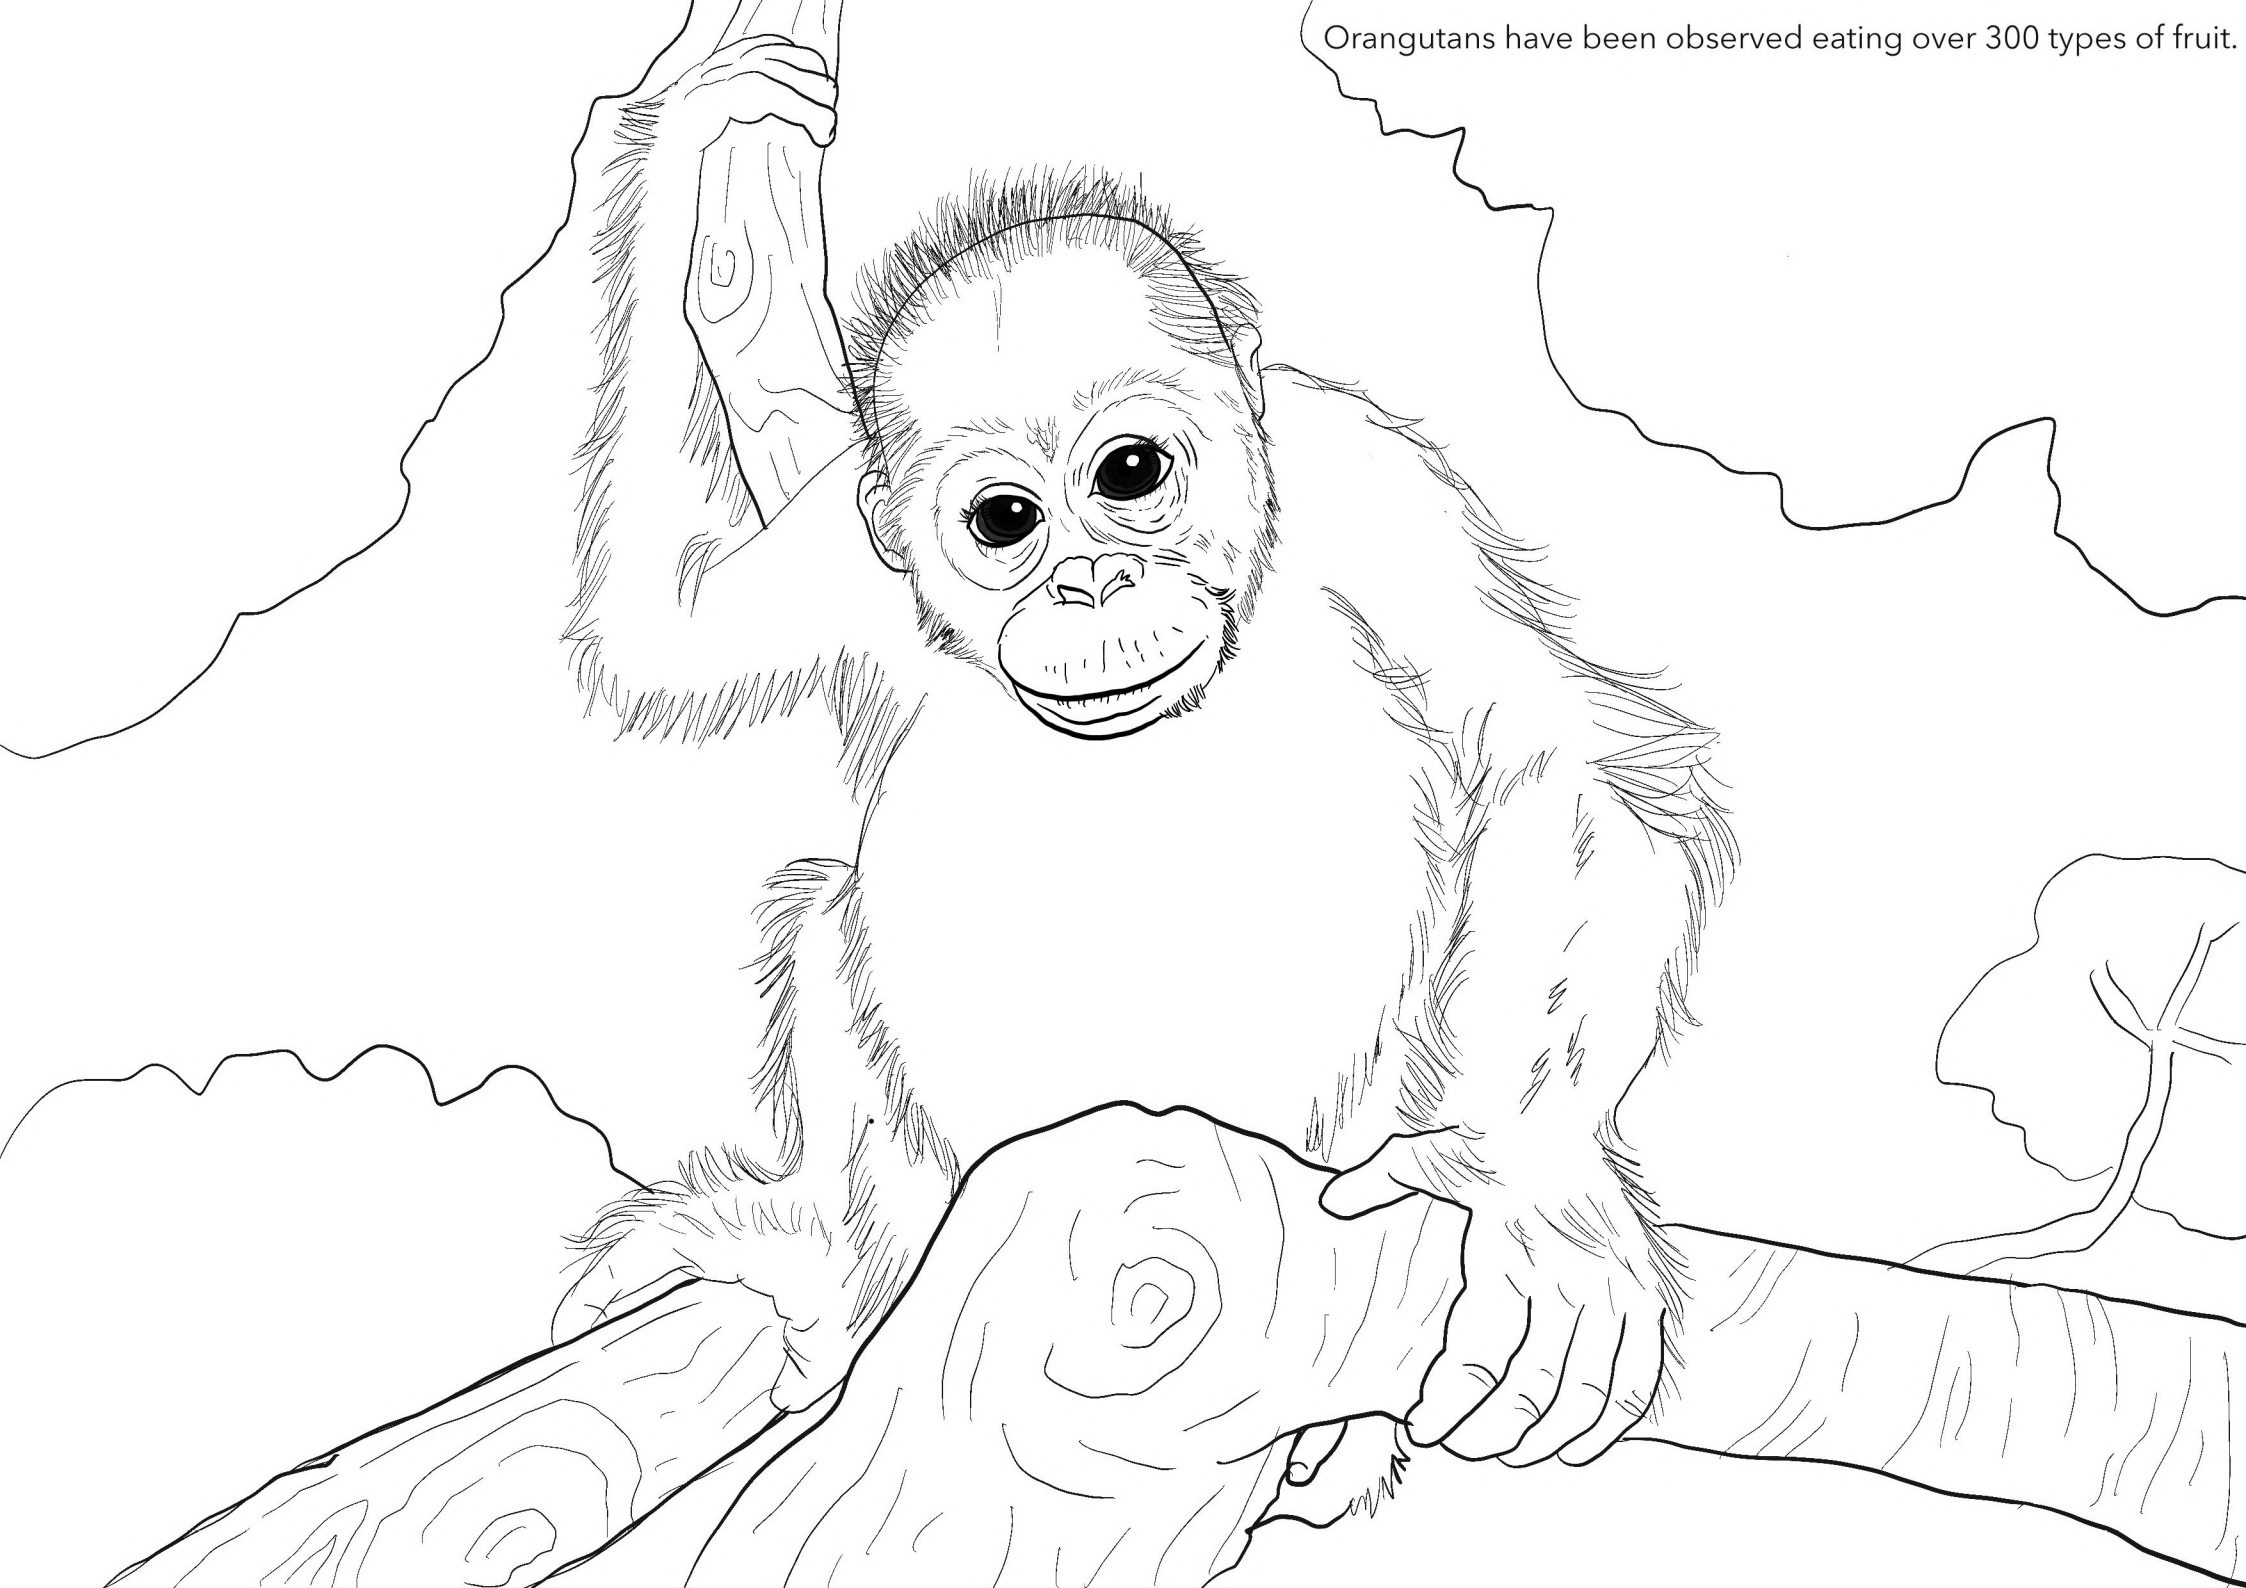

Orangutans' arms stretch out longer than their bodies - up to 8 ft. from fingertip to fingertip in the case of very large males.

For the first few years of his/her life, a young orangutan holds tight to his/her mother's body as she moves through the forest canopy.

Orangutans have been observed eating over 300 types of fruit.
